

RANT

DRUGS

DRUGS

Small Town - Dayton

Vico
MOTOR OIL
PEP 88

GROCERIES Direct Sanitary Meats

Unitedly
Operated

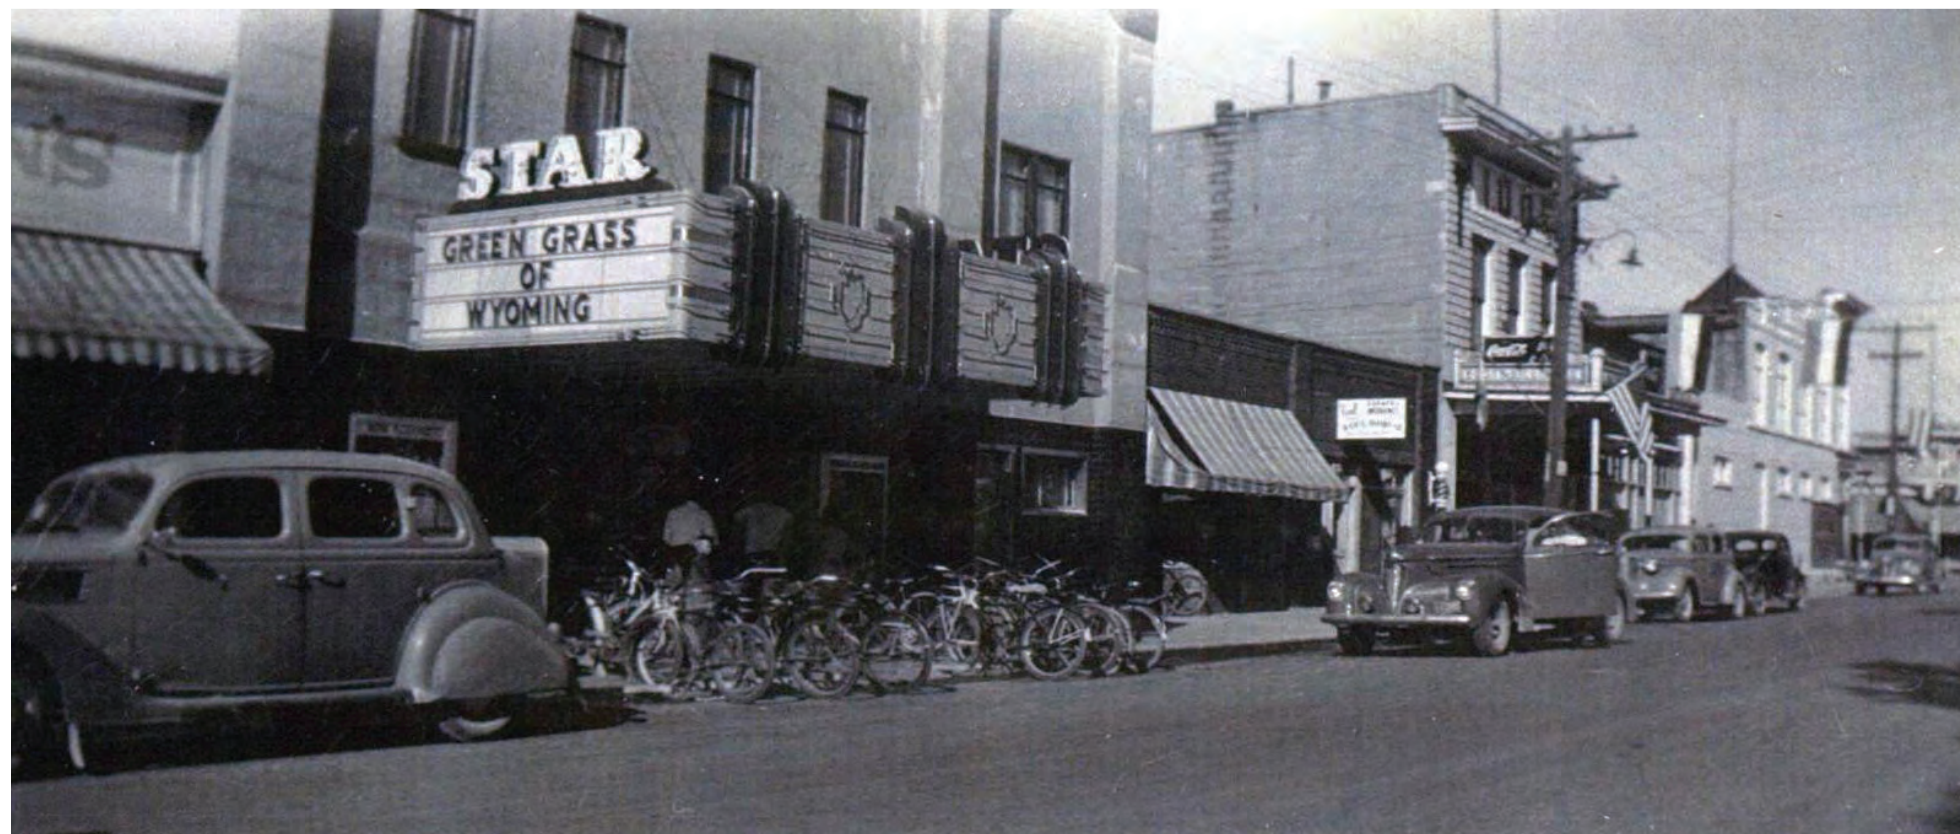

Going Fishin'?
GET YOUR FREE COPY
OF BOOKLET NOW

QUAKER STATE
MOTOR OIL

Vico
MOTOR OIL

UTAH OIL REFINING CO.

SPEC

Main Street, ca. 1950

Various Residences

WELLWORTH
STORES CO.

WELLWORTH

RY G. L. IS, FURNISH

77 Looking North St. Payson Feb 1914

Huish Furniture and Casket Company

Built in 1870 by Walter Huish, located between Main Street and 100 North on the north side of the street. It housed furniture manufacturing and sales on the first floor and a casket manufacturer on the upper floor. The building housed several other businesses until it was demolished and a car wash was constructed on part of the property.

(Courtesy of Payson Historical Society)

Main Street, Winter 1890

Photo shows Main Street, between Depot Street (Utah Avenue) and 100 South. The sleigh is in front of what would be today's library; the Morganson Frame Building is located on the right.

(Courtesy of Payson Historical Society)

Nebo Stake Tabernacle

Located on Main Street, the tabernacle was dedicated in 1907 and demolished in the early 1980s.

Old Payson City Hall

Located at about 270 South Main Street, the Old Payson City Hall was built in 1870 and was one of the first brick buildings in the city. The building was used as a city hall with offices for the mayor, city council, and a court on the main floor. Since the original building was demolished in 1925, the site housed the New Payson Junior High and is currently the site of an LDS church.

(Courtesy of Payson Historical Society)

Looking East along E. St. at Pavilion

Feb 1914

Winter on Main Street, ca. 1920

The east side of Main Street near today's Morganson Frame.

(Courtesy of Payson Historical Society)

Haystacks near Payson

(Courtesy of Utah State Historical Society)

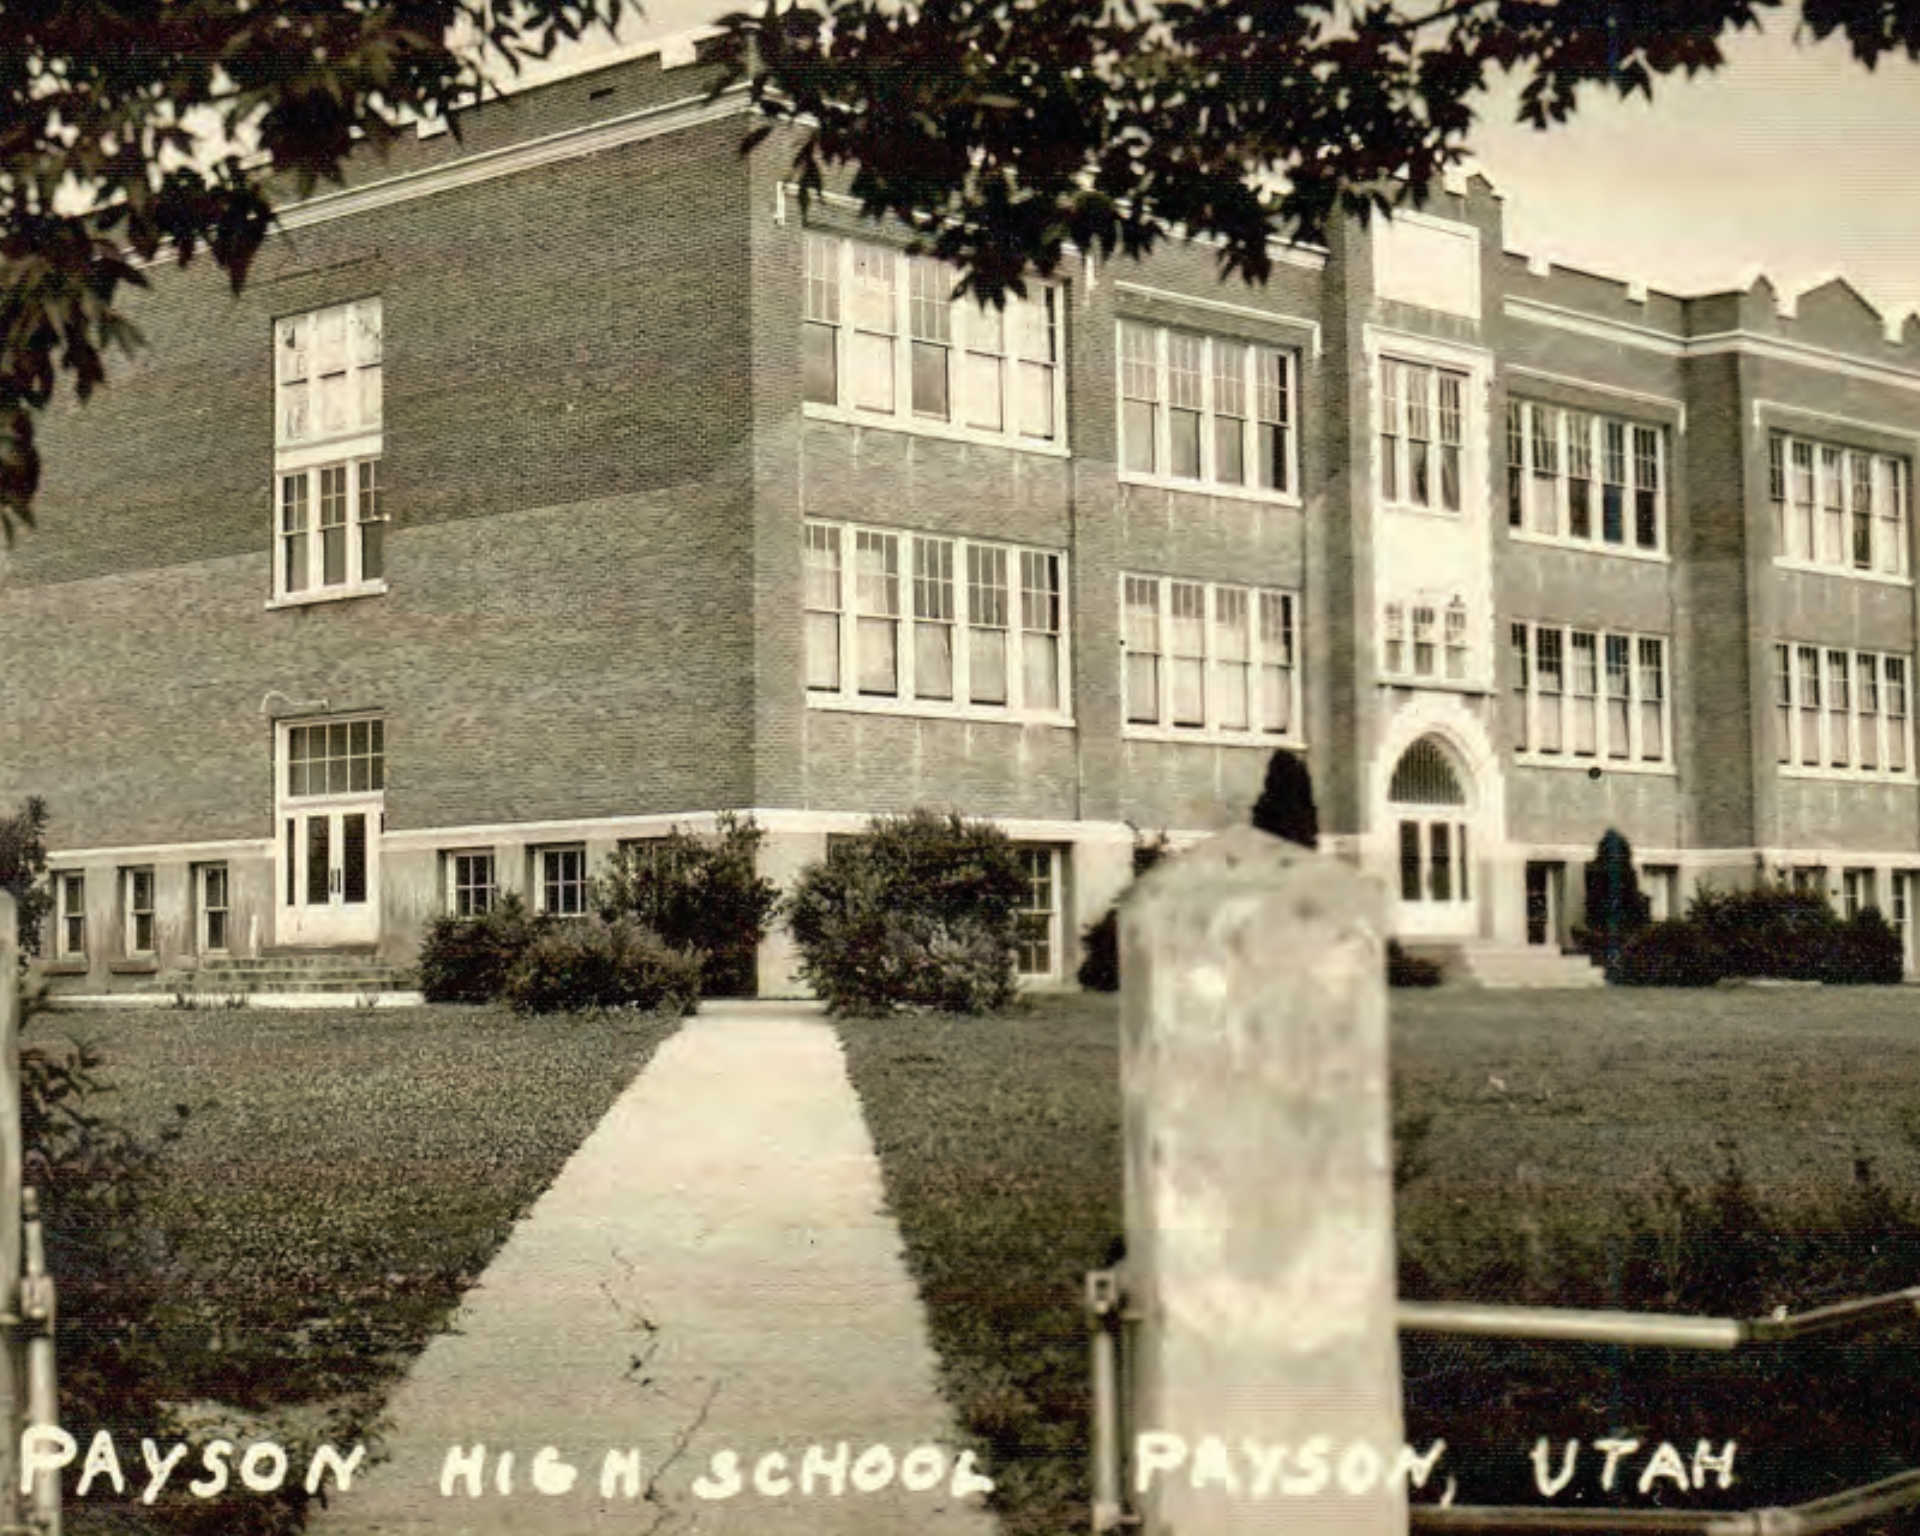

Commerical Bank

Commerical Bank, located on Main Street, opened in August 1940.

(Courtesy of Payson Historical Society)

PAYSON HIGH SCHOOL PAYSON, UTAH

Utah Poultry & Farmer's Co-op, ca. 1940

Later the cooperative became the Intermountain Farmers Association (IFA).